GORGEOUS SERVICE FLAG UNFURLED AT WOOD ST. AND LINCOLN AVENUE HONORS MEN IN SERVICE FROM THAT COMMUNITY

"We Have Faith in Those Boys of Ours," is The Message of Woman Eye-Witness to Pearl Harbor Attack, As She Addresses Parents, Wives and Friends of Boys — Prominent Speakers — Music is Rendered by Local Organizations

"We have faith in those boys of ours" was a message given by an eye-witness to the Pearl Harbor attack of December 7th to the parents, wives, sweethearts and friends of the community banded by Jefferson avenue, Pond and Radcliffe streets, and Adams Hollow Creek, yesterday afternoon, when a gorgeous service flag was unfurled in honor of the men from that area who have responded to their nation's call to arms.

This tribute to the young men from that section of Bristol and to the boys of the land in general who are fighting on the far-flung battle fronts and training in countless camps, was paid by Mrs. Marie Clark Hamilton, wife of Chief Petty Officer Jack C. Hamilton, U. S. N., when she was one of the featured speakers of an impressive 2 1/2 hour program arranged by residents of that community, and held at the intersection of Wood street and Lincoln avenue.

Places of honor were accorded the mothers, fathers and wives of the 68 men from the section who are serving under the stars and stripes, rows of chairs being arranged for them on the street in front of the speakers' platform which occupied the center of the intersection. Highlights of the day, in addition to the unfurling of the flag which measures 10x15 feet, were addresses by prominent residents of Bristol and Bucks County, music by the Bristol high school band and glee club, and the American Legion Cadets of Robert W. Bracken Post, presentation of service pins to parents and wives of the men to whom tribute was paid; and singing by the assemblage of patriotic numbers. An amplifying system took the messages to the several hundred gathered.

Ralph Palladino served as master of ceremonies, presenting the guest speakers who were seated upon the attractively decorated platform. American flags were strung at intervals across Wood street and Lincoln avenue in that area. The affair was sponsored by residents of that part of Bristol bounded by the above-mentioned streets.

The service flag contains on the upper part of the wide red border the words "God Bless Our Boys," and on the lower border "Buy Bonds." In the white center appears a picture of a soldier, sailor and marine, while on either side in the center of blue stars which form "V's" are blue eagles. Near the bottom of the flag is a circle of blue stars with the figure "68" in the center. The flag is gold-fringed. It was unfurled from a cord extending across Lincoln avenue, by Sgt. diRenzo and 2nd Lt. Zefferies. The large flag was presented by Mr. Palladino, on behalf of residents of that area, to the people of the community. The flag was blessed by the Rev. Father Peter Pinci of St. Ann's parish.

Prior to the ceremony the Bristol high school band, directed by Charles Quigley, played selections, and shortly before 2:30 the American Legion Cadets, with members of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, in the lead, marched from the post home to the site of the ceremonies, as the cadets played.

A number of young men from the community, home from their bases or camps on furloughs, attended the ceremony. Immediately following the welcome by the master of ceremonies, the high school glee club sang "The Star-Spangled Banner." Mr. Palladino stated "We are here to honor those boys who are doing a good job, fighting for their country." He then called upon the Rev. Francis J. Panetta for the invocation.

The first speaker, J. Leslie Kilcoyne, Esq., said: "We, gathered here this afternoon, are honored in having the privilege of paying tribute to the boys who have answered their country's call through presentation of this magnificent service flag. The boys so honored are giving the greatest service within the power of human beings to render one another. If necessary they will lay down their lives and 'greater love hath no man than this that he lay down his life for his friend.' Our boys are part of that line that extends from Alaska to the Solomons, and it represents civilization's last stand." Mr. Kilcoyne spoke of the sacrifices the boys are making. "And we who are here at home—they need us and our full measure of devotion. They cannot succeed without us. We must give everything we have. Without us they will not be successful." After considering the attitude of some individuals toward rationing of certain foods, the speaker asked that they "remember those three men on a raft who for 34 days floated without food, and then it will be a little easier. . . . We must think more, talk more, and work more, and use our every resource and every action toward a successful conclusion of this war, and with God's help we will be victorious."

Jacob C. Schmidt, Jr., chief of civilian defense of Lower Bucks County, was also introduced, he also bringing greetings of the Bracken Post of the American Legion. "We of Bracken Post feel this occasion keenly," he stated, "for the fact that from this area many of the boys who received their primary instruction in military etiquette and discipline in our bugle corps, are in the group, honored today. We are particularly proud of this section of the town, for it has given us capable players for our corps."

The principles which prompted the program of the day were outlined to be gathering in Italian by Alfred Tomesani, representing the Sons of Italy. Angelo Liberatore, president of Mutual Aid Society, spoke of the sacrifice of our boys.

RATIONING OF FUEL OIL EXPLAINED FOR THE BENEFIT OF THE PUBLIC BY MEMBER OF RATIONING BOARD

The Courier requested Doron Green, president of the Bristol Rationing Board, to explain the method to be employed by the Office of Price Administration in figuring the amount of fuel oil to be allotted for the heating of home. His reply was as follows: "The explanation to your question is very difficult and hard to understand. In order to be as brief as possible I shall associate my explanation with a hypothetical case. For instance, let us suppose that a house contains a dwelling area of 2,000 feet. "There is a place in the questionnaire where the owner of the property must record the square feet floor space of each room. The total of this sum is called the (a) Dwelling area (which in this instance as stated before is 2,000 feet), and this total is placed in a bracket on the top or first line. "The second line in the bracket is called (b) Area ceiling. To obtain this amount reference is made to a table which gives the maximum floor area allowable by number of occupants of the house. In the present illustration we shall suppose that the family consists of four persons, a father, mother and two small children. By referring to the table it is found that the allowable floor area is 3,200 square feet. This amount is placed on the second line in the bracket which is known as (b) Area ceiling. "The third, fourth and fifth lines in the bracket are designated (c) Maximum range, (d) Middle range, (e) Minimum range. On page 23 in the book of instructions will be found a table showing the three different rations (rallons) required to heat different floor areas. As we run our finger down the array of figures and stop

MAY BUILD 800 HOUSES ON LAND NEAR BRISTOL BORO'

Reports Say That Tract in Bristol Township Has Been Selected

MAY COST $3,000,000

Land Owners State Nothing Definite Has Been Decided

Reports continue to be circulated that a government project of 800 houses is to be started here soon. These reports have been in circulation for the past several weeks but according to owners of the land where it is believed the project is to be located, nothing definite has been determined.

The site which it is believed will be selected is the Larzelere farm at Beaver Dam Road and Green Lane. The houses it is stated are to be temporary in nature.

According to reports published yesterday, George Daub and Edward Wigham, Philadelphia architects, have been selected to prepare plans for the Bristol development. Wigham was the designer of the huge housing development on Penrose avenue, south Philadelphia, built to house war workers in Government plants in that area.

The exact location of the development has not been announced. It is known that several appraisers representing the Government and property owners went over a large tract in the Bristol section a few weeks ago. It is likely that the tract will be the site for the 800 houses, which will probably represent an investment of more than $3,000,000.

FIRE DESTROYS SMALL FRAME HOUSE AND ITS CONTENTS

Mrs. Samuel Fite and Baby Forced To Flee From The Burning Structure

CLOTHING ALSO IS LOST

Blaze Was Caused by Overheated Flue, It Is Believed

Fire yesterday afternoon totally destroyed a small house with its contents and the occupants had to flee in order to prevent being burned.

The house, located near the farm house of Harry Larzelere on Beaver Dam Road, was occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Fite and a ten-month-old child. The Fites lost everything, including furniture and all clothing with the exception of what they were wearing.

Mr. Fite discovered that the house was afire as he was returning from the home of his mother-in-law, across the road, where he had gone for water. He ran into the house and warned his wife, who grabbed the baby and ran from the building just before the roof fell in.

Mrs. Fite at the time the blaze was discovered was preparing dinner on an oil stove. A wood fire in another stove was used for heating purposes and it is believed that the flue from this stove had become overheated and set fire to the roof.

When Mr. Fite first ran into the house and warned his wife that the place was afire she thought that he was fooling and failed to heed his warning. As she glanced up at the roof, however, she soon learned that the roof was really burning.

Bristol firemen were called but by the time they arrived the small frame structure was doomed.

HE WHO HAS REASON—

Those who have followed the political campaign this year have been impressed by the calm, dispassionate discussion of vital State issues by GOP candidate for Governor—General Edward Martin.

By comparison, the loud-mouthed ranting and raving of his little New Deal opponent, who is trying to ride into office on nonexistent coat-tails, is driving members of his own party to the support of the Republican ticket.

The Chinese, who have a proverb for every occasion, wisely observe:

"He who has reason on his side need not speak with a loud voice."

There, in a nutshell, is the fundamental difference between the two opposing candidates for Governor.

General Martin quietly pleads for united effort to end the war as quickly as possible, and presents plans for the victorious peace to follow.

His opponent, the loud voice, shrieks his hatred of all men—and women—who do not subscribe to his particular New Deal of politics.

"He who has reason"—will vote accordingly.

THIEVERY IN THE AIR

The profession of picking pockets attained a new high recently when one of the practitioners of the art was reported plying his trade aboard a trans-Atlantic Clipper. One of forty passengers arriving at New York asserted he had missed his wallet while ashore at a port on his way to this country and on his return to the plane had found the wallet, with $50 missing, under a seat. FBI agents attempted to ferret out the culprit, but apparently without success.

This rare instance of thievery in the air contrasts sharply with kindred activities on the ground, although it shows the heights to which a pickpocket will go to carry on his nefarious trade. It may be a tribute, however doubtful, to the pickpocket that he is able to adjust himself to every form of transportation.

Early immigrants to America were well aware that skillful members of the profession did not disdain the sailing vessel and they have been known to accompany many a steamer. But the ports of America, when immigration to this country was great, served as their paradise. Many a foreigner was relieved of his life savings while still awestruck by the magnificence of the land of his adoption.

Some of the trucks who never seemed to be able to move over to their own side will now be moved off the highways entirely.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol Jan. 6, 1881. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

Two gangs of men employed in laying the wires of the American Telegraph Company, between Philadelphia and New Brunswick, reached Bristol last week, and for several days made this their headquarters. On Thursday last the weather was too severe for them, as for everybody else, and they refused to work. Among the workmen were a number of colored men from Alabama, who became disgusted with the weather, and returned home. Some Bristol men are employed in this business with one of these companies of men.

The borough ordinance requiring the sidewalks to be cleared of snow is not as effective as might be. The snows come so frequently that the constable would be kept busy notifying people to keep their pavements clear if he attempted to attend to that duty. It is worthy of note also, that the borough itself does not carry out the provisions of the ordinance, for the street crossings in very many instances are in worse condition than the sidewalks.

Frank Minster has sold his butchery establishment, and all its appurtenances, to Eugene Highland, who will carry on the business in addition to keeping a shop on Market street.

Since the railroad has adopted a new time table, it is to be hoped the trains will be nearer on schedule time than during the past week. Otherwise we had better return to stage coaches.

The new coroner has appointed William Young as his deputy for Bristol borough.

The storm on Tuesday evening did not seem to effect the attendance at the holiday meeting of the Bristol Institute, for the hall was crowded. Mr. F. P. Crichton sang two solos between the setting of the tableaux.

These latter were as follows: "The Soldier's Dream of Home," Misses Belle Douglass, Rhoda Roberts, Bertie Brouse, Mr. Charles Burke, and Mr. Parker Fine. "Florizel and Perdita," Misses Mattie Brown, Kate Goforth, and Mr. Frank Iredell. "Juliet in the Cell of Friar Laurence," Miss Patterson, of Philadelphia, and Mr. Frank P. Adams. "Othello Relating His Adventures," Miss Mary Bache, Mr. Frank Adams and Mr. Frank Iredell. "The Corsair's Bride," Miss Laura Sargent, and Mr. Wilfred Johnson. "Gertrude of Wyoming," Miss Kate Goforth, Mr. Frank Iredell and Mr. Parker Fine.

The coroner's jury investigating the late railroad accident, held its final session on last Friday evening. The jury, after much deliberation, rendered the following verdict upon the death of George Wave, Andrew O'Donnell and Patrick Huston:

"While we recognize the act of attempting to cross a railroad track without being mindful of an approaching train as excessively careless, yet we find that the engineer of train No. 10, eastbound, on the morning of December 21st, 1889, censurable on account of having violated a rule of the company that forbids a train to pass while another passenger train is at the station. But inasmuch as there is no waiting-room on the west side of the railroad, thus necessitating passengers to cross the track on the arrival of the west-bound train; and the additional fact of suffering trains to pass while a passenger train is at the station, we regard as great negligence deserving censure. We therefore recommend the erection of a suitable building for the accommodation of passengers desiring to take the west-bound train, and also that signals be placed at proper distances from the station to notify engineers of approaching trains as to whether there is a passenger train at the station or not."

Alfred Edwards, aged 18, whose mother lately resided in Bristol, was last Thursday evening assaulted and robbed at Broad and Berks streets, Philadelphia. He was dragged by his assailants, five in number, to a lot where he was robbed. The five men who committed the assault were on Tuesday discovered and arrested, and four were committed for trial, while the fifth was held for a further hearing.

GIRL IN THE GREEN COAT by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN

Mr. Grant was mopping the foyer when I ran downstairs on my way to the office at a quarter to seven. He had on his old derby hat, and his greenish coat and though he always acted as if he were invisible when doubling for the janitor, this time he didn't.

He looked at me mournfully, over his gold-rimmed spectacles. "Miss Driscoll, you shouldn't stay in this building. It's no place for you—no place for you."

"Oh, it seems to be all right again," I said, trying to be bright and flippant because I couldn't stand his sad eyes, and the grizzly pink mop in his hands, "everybody knows now, and nobody seems to care!"

"No—wait! This business, last night. It's not the last. You mark my words, not the last!"

"It was an accident—a frightful accident—but only an accident. It didn't have anything to do with the other thing." I had stepped around his nails and mops and was almost at the door now. "Goodbye, have to get to work," I said.

He looked after me, shaking his head sadly, from side to side.

I was glad enough to get out into the air, and presently into the office, where unopened mails are just good copy, and murders are only news. Last night's events made headlines in all the papers, and ours came out with Madame Hurd's story, her portrait as Carmen, a two column enlargement of Pete Raymond's ear, and the thirty cable pistol they were now trying to prove was his. Also a cut of the late Gil Castle and a merry party aboard the yacht "Eleanor," taken last summer.

What was the real story? I didn't for a moment think that Pete Raymond was the man, but just how did he come into it? Who was this Ben Howell who worked for him? Why had he shadowed Raymond and why had they had that horrible fight in our building? Why had Ben Howell turned against his employer, and why had he drawn a gun and shot him?

They were well enough known around town. Big money changed hands in Raymond's innocent looking cigar stands and pool-rooms. Howell had worked for Raymond for eleven years. Everybody knew them. But nobody knew any of the things that might have helped. It was still a mystery, and I didn't even have time to call the hospital to ask about Emilie, before it was time to leave for the funeral.

It was private, just a few people, and an avalanche of hot-house flowers. I could not find my few lilies-of-the-valley. They were lost somewhere under shelves of orchids and gardenias and roses. I got the lilies-of-the-valley because he bought some for me once. I thought he must have liked them.

Mrs. Castle, in deepest mourning, was surrounded by a tight, solitary little group of stoutish elderly women, and impressive gray-haired men. It was their affair. Gilbert Castle belonged to his mother at last!

I sat alone in a back pew, and when it was over I slipped out quietly.

Somehow I had not realized what it would be like. The murdered man about whom I had written thousands of words had never been Gil Castle to me. I knew it was he, and I knew that this man whom I used to love was dead, and that someone killed him. And yet I didn't know... I couldn't believe it... I couldn't realize that it was the end.

Now I knew. I did not write a good story. I couldn't.

Josh read it over, frowning. "Can't you put some heart in it?" he said. "It's a good, human-interest story. The broken-hearted mother, and the old Castle servants, and maybe the murderer sitting there in a pew. Don't you get it? Or you might have a couple of 'B' girls, who used to be crazy about him, pushing their way through the crowd and crying, see?"

I tried again. It still lacked heart.

Josh read it, added a few adjectives, and let it go. "O.K.," he said, "go to lunch, and then drop over and see how Hare is coming with Pete Raymond. And by the way, here's Emilie's statement. Hare got it out of her, read it before you go."

He turned back to his telephone. There was a fire in Chinatown.

I picked up Emilie's statement. I wish I'd gone in the interior decorating business, or gone to business school, or come to a long line of acrobats, or had fifty dollars saved up, so I could quit.

There was one consolation, Emilie wasn't as sick as I had feared, if she was able to make a long statement like this one.

There were several long typewritten pages of questions and answers. She said (as she had told Peg and me already) that she had had the flu, had taken something to make her sleep on the night of the murder and did not see or hear her ex-husband, Pete Raymond, or anyone else after she took the sleeping tablets at eight, until I woke her and told her what had happened, about seven the next morning.

She admitted that Pete had a pistol in the days when she lived with him as his wife, but did not think it was like the one that was found by the murdered man's side.

"I could not swear to it," she said, "but I think it was smaller. All I know is that he kept it by his bed at night and I never knew him to use it, or even load it or clean it. He kept it in his top bureau drawer in the day time, and put it by his side, on a table or chair, at night."

"He never killed a living thing. He never hunted or even fished, as other men do. He was in a restaurant that had a raw-meat or fowl display in the window, and he never wanted me to cook at home because he said that egg-shells and raw meat and things made him sick. Now, does a man like that go out and shoot another man for no reason whatever?"

"And though he did say that he knew the late Mr. Castle, I really doubt that he did, for he was losing consciousness when he made that statement. I do not think he understood the question. I think he thought he was being asked about Mr. Howell."

There were several pages of questions and answers about Howell and the affair of last night, but nothing new. She just told about Pete com-

SUPPLEE TO HIRE WOMEN MILK DRIVERS

Miss Amy Hatfield, 18, salesgirl, was among first applicants to seek jobs as milk wagon drivers when the Supplee-Will-Jones Milk Company, Philadelphia, advertised recently for women to take the places of driver-salesmen who have joined the nation's armed services. Miss Hatfield, who claims membership in the famous feuding West Virginia family, is shown wearing ski-suit uniform made of aralia, a fabric woven from milk protein fiber, designed for the women drivers.

queathed the sum of $1000 outright and a piano to Trinity Lutheran Church in Quakertown.

The testatrix, who made her will May 23, 1941, also left $1,000 to the Union Cemetery Company of Quakertown.

Six relatives will share the remainder of the estate.

A son, Chester E. Bratsing, Edison, who was also named the executor, is the sole beneficiary of the $20,000 personal and $11,700 real estate holdings of his father, Jacob L. Bratsing, well-known County Seat haberdasher, who died September 12th.

Letters of administration in the estate of Eli B. Meyers, Quakertown, were granted to Otto B. Meyers, amounting to a personal estate of $1000. The heirs are his widow, Ida A., and a son, Otto B., 121 South Ninth street, Quakertown.

In the estate of Michael Pone, Bristol, letters of administration were granted to his widow, Angeline Pone, amounting to a personal estate of $2200 and a house and lot at 202 Penn-street, Bristol. The heirs include the widow, four sons, Albert, James, Frank and Dominic, and five daughters, Mary and Carmella Pone, Emma Gilardi, Anna Moore and Louise Pecarro.

Walter L. Cressman was granted the letters of administration in the estate of Edwin W. Walt, Milford township, amounting to a personal estate of $1300. The heirs include a grandmother, Lavina Schaffer, Coplay; four uncles, Henry P. Schaffer, Fullerton; John J. Schaffer, Northampton; Edgar G. Schaffer, Coplay, and Henry H. Walt, Spinnerstown, and two aunts, Mary Billig and Jennie Leopold, both of Coplay.

cludes six additions since the start of the school term.

The approval of the purchase of several books to be added to the school library was announced following the board's special meeting. The books will be used for extra curricular reading and many will be reported for final examinations.

Members of the South Langhorne school board in announcing the changes brought about in recent months emphasized the importance of the members lost. Mrs. William Rumpf, Jr., has been a member of the board since November 16, 1933, and Alex Knox, who left his school post to accept the office of tax collector last January, had served on the Board 12 years and had been president of the body since 1932.

The board disclosed that these members had been active during the depression when serious financial difficulties faced the school. When fighting for existence their untiring efforts had greatly assisted in enabling the board to carry on.

Due to the large balance of delinquent per capita taxes, the board has found it necessary to put collections in the hands of an agency approved by the State Department of Public Instruction. For this reason it has been necessary to appoint Louis E. Carroll, a member of the board, as deputy delinquent tax collector. The delinquent taxes in question are for the years 1940 and 1941.

(By the Rev. James R. Galley)
Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church

O God of all grace and truth, who art worthy of a nobler praise than our lips can utter, and of a greater love than we can give or understand, accept that which we bring unto thee in our humility. Accept our humble gifts and our poor efforts that they may be used in accordance with thy will for the advancement of thy kingdom. We are unable to give unto thee in proportion to what we have received from thee, but we can give to thee gifts which symbolize the giving of ourselves, that in our lives thy Name might be glorified. PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—The far-famed Philadelphia Orchestra will stay close to home for the duration.

Officials announced that transportation problems would make it impossible for the 110 men to make their tour into the south and mid-west this season.

The five sleeping cars and baggage car that overnight trips required are needed now for war transportation. Consequently, Washington, New Haven and Hartford—all coach trips—will be the farthest stops on the itinerary, while New York, Baltimore, Richmond, heading, Harrisburg and Schenectady engagements also will be filled.

BRISTOL'S OFFENSIVE POWER AT LOW EBB AND MORRISVILLE WINS OVER HIGH SCHOOL BUNNIES; SCORE, 14 TO 0

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 26—Bristol High's offensive power was at its lowest ebb on the Robert Morris Field, here, Saturday afternoon, as the Morrisville Bulldogs won its first triumph of the season, beating the Bunnies, 14-0, in a game which was more one-sided than the score indicates.

Bristol just didn't have it against the Morrisville team and only in the final few plays of the game did the boys of Coach Bartholomew do anything to move back the Morrisville clan towards its own goal posts. In this drive, Bristol made three consecutive first downs to carry the ball from their own 30 yard line to the Bulldogs' 20 as the game ended.

It wasn't that the Cardinal and Grey received any bad breaks. If anything, Fortune smiled on them in the very first play of the game when the opening kickoff did not go the necessary yardage and was recovered by Lomma, the kicker, to give Bristol possession of the ball on the Morrisville 40.

But at this point of the game, the Bristol field generalship made a repetition of the kind of playing which helped Riverside to swamp Bristol. After failing to gain in three tries, Bristol chose to try a pass instead of a short kick which would have put Morrisville in a deep hole. But after this play, Morrisville was boss of the entire game.

A bad boot from the toe of Peter Miller led to the first Morrisville score in the third session after the Bunnies' defense had held the Hoffman boys scoreless in the first half. Miller's kick, from beyond his own goal line, took a backward hop and went out of bounds on the one-yard line. From here, Marsh on the second try went over for the score. Marsh also added the extra point on a line play.

A delayed buck which netted 18 yards led to the scoring of the second Morrisville six-pointer. Needl was the player who carried the pigskin on the play and he went from the 19 yard line to the Bristol one before being stopped. It took Phillips three tries at the Bristol line before he went over and then converted the extra point try with a pass to Querns.

Bristol's forward pass department was in fine working order as it completed seven out of 13 tries. Of the six first downs made by Coach Bartholomew's proteges, four were the result of passes. As a matter of fact, both first downs credited to Bristol in the first half were on forwards. Morrisville had seven first downs to its credit.

The Bunnies failed to take advantage of a good break in the first period when Lomma recovered his own kick-off on the homester's forty. Immediately after taking possession of the ball, Lomma went off tackle for four yards but a pass failed and Messenelli lost five yards on an attempted end run. On the fourth down, a short pass was completed for a one-yard gain. Marsh hit the line for a short loss for Morrisville and Phillips made six yards on a sweeping end run but on third down, Phillips quick-kicked to the Bristol 10 yard line.

Messenelli fumbled for Bristol but recovered for a slight loss. Miller then booted to his own 45. Phillips lost three yards on a play and added eight on his second attempt. Phillips and Marsh collaborated to make it a first down on Bristol's 32. Phillips gained 4 yards on an end run but a line play and a spinner by Marsh lost the same number. On the next play, Phillips rifled a pass to Querns who dropped the ball. Bristol getting possession of it. Hajducek made four yards for Bristol but on the next play there was a fumble and Pratt recovered for Morrisville. Phillips lost a yard and Needl gained two on a reverse. Two more plays were stopped by the Bristol line and the Bulldogs lost the ball on Bristol's 33 as the quarter ended.

Hajducek failed to gain and Miller lost five yards on two plays, forcing Miller to kick to his own 45. Phillips faked a reverse without a gain. Johnson intercepted a pass and ran to the 47 before being dropped by Pratt and Gentry. Bristol attempted two passes and failed. Miller kicked to Pratt on the Morrisville 20 and the Bulldogs' quarterback carried the ball back to his own 40, thanks to some nice clipping by Phillips. After a line play failed, Phillips found a hole at tackle which netted 15 yards. Phillips added five more on an end run. Riebel broke through and tossed Pratt for a loss and two more plays failed for Bristol received the ball on their 38 yard line.

Johnson's interference was missing as he lost 8 yards on an end run. But Bristol got five back when Morrisville took a penalty. A pass, Hajducek to Cordisco was good for 20 yards and Bristol's initial first down. Miller got five on a wing sweep. Miller then heaved a pass to Cordisco which resulted in an 18 yard gain and another first down. Line plays and passes failed and Miller booted to the Morrisville 10 yard line where two plays netted six yards as the half came to a close.

At the start of the second half, Lomma booted to the 40 where there was a scramble but Morrisville had the ball. Phillips hit center for four yards. Phillips tossed a pass to Needl who missed it, although no Bristol player interfered. Phillips got off a nice kick which was downed on the Bristol three yard line. Miller gained 4 yards on a play and then in attempting to boot out of danger got off a bum boot which bounced back out of bounds on the one yard line from where Marsh went over to pay dirt. On a fake kick, Marsh hit the line for the extra point to make the score, 7-0.

Morrisville kicked off, Bristol fumbled, and Morrisville's Pratt and Marsh fell on the ball. Phillips and Marsh made gains but a penalty set them back. Phillips got off a dandy kick to the Bristol 15 where Querns downed the ball. Hajducek carried the ball three times for eight yards and then Miller kicked to mid-field. Phillips carried the ball twice and aided by a five-yard Bristol penalty made a first down as the quarter ended.

Marsh made two yards on a line buck and added five off-tackle. Bristol did not expect Marsh to carry the ball on the third try but he did and got away to the Bristol 19 yard line. A delayed line play by Needl was good for 18 yards and again Morrisville was on the Bristol one-yard line. In three tries Phillips carried it over. A pass, Phillips to Querns, was good for the other point to make the score 14-0.

Maag made a nice run-back of the kick-off, stopping on the Morrisville 45. On the first play, Miller heaved an aerial to Maag which netted 15 yards. On three plays, Bristol made nine yards and then missed a first down by a fraction of an inch. Pratt got away on a spinner for 20 yards to stop at mid-field Morrisville suffered a 15 yard penalty. Querns then downed a Bristol kick on their thirty. Miller made 15 yards on an end run and added ten more on a fake pass. A pass, Miller to Maag added 20 yards to bring the ball to Morrisville's 20 as the game ended.

The game was a non-league match as the teams will meet on the Bristol field, Thanksgiving Day, in a Lower Bucks County League match.

Rationing of Fuel Oil Explained by Board Member

at 2,000 square feet, which is the Dwelling area of the building which we are using as an example, we find the different ratios as follows: (c) Maximum range or ration 1964 gallons, (d) Middle range 1736 gallons, (e) Minimum range 1507 gallons.

"Line six in the bracket is called (f) Hist. heat hot water. On this line is placed the amount of fuel oil consumed in supplying heat and domestic hot water during the twelve months ending last May 31. This amount is furnished by the dealer to the consumer. In our present illustration the amount is given as 2454 gallons. This amount is placed on the sixth line which is known as (f) Hist. heat hot water.

"The next or seventh line in the bracket is called (g) Hist. hot water. To find the amount to be placed on this line reference is made to another table which specifies the amount of fuel oil consumption for heating domestic hot water by number of occupants and by the months during which hot water was heated. This table shows that a family of four people will use 420 gallons of fuel oil for heating hot water during a twelve months period. In consequence, this 420 gallons is placed on line seven (g) Hist. hot water and is then subtracted from the line above and the difference (2454 minus 420 equals 2034 gallons) is placed in line eight (h) Hist. heat.

"Next we have two lines (nine and ten) which are known as (i) Base, and (j) Special base. This time we refer to a table on page 47 of the instruction booklet and find that the (i) Regular base is 1519 gallons and the (j) Special base 1925 gallons.

"If the (i) Regular base is greater than the maximum of the range, then the maximum range is placed in (k) Prelim. heat. If the (i) Regular base falls between the maximum and minimum of the range, the (i) Regular base is placed in (k) Prelim. heat. If the (i) Regular base falls below the minimum of the range, write the (e) Minimum of the range or (j) Special base (whichever is less) in space (k). In this instance the (i) Regular base falls between the maximum and minimum range and in consequence, the (i) Regular base (1519) is brought down and entered on line 11 which is known as (k) Prelim. heat.

"Line twelve provides for allowance of hot water for children. Bristol being in thermal zone 'B' by looking in the same instruction booklet it is found that 100 extra gallons are allowed and this amount is placed on line twelve (l) Children's allowance.

"Line thirteen (m) Hot water allowance, is a computation of the fuel oil required to heat an amount of hot water required for a family. In this instance which we are considering with four in the family, by referring to the table we find the allowance is 280 gallons.

"The next or fourteenth line contains the (n) Total ratings. The sum of the last three amounts (1519 plus 100 plus 280 is 1899 gallons) represent the total ratings to which a family of four consisting of a father, mother and two children would be entitled.

"And now the wonderful mathematicians who worked out this complicated system were imbued with a brilliant idea. The consumer is told to take an inventory of his fuel oil as of October 1, but irrespective of the amount of oil in his tank, he must put his inventory down as 250 gallons, which deducted from the (n) Total ratings on line fifteen leaves a (p) Net ration of 1640 gallons. Provision is made for the consumer to file a claim for the shortage later on. After the computations are all completed the box will look like this:

(a) Dwelling area	2000
(b) Area ceiling	3200
(c) Maximum range	1964
(d) Middle range	1736
(e) Minimum range	1507
(f) Hist. heat hot water	2454
(g) Hist. hot water	420
(h) Hist. heat	2034
(i) Base	1519
(j) Special base	1925
(k) Prelim. heat	1519
(l) Children's allowance	100
(m) Hot water allowance	280
(n) Total ration	1899
(o) Inventory	250
(p) Net ration	1640

"This is an explanation of the method to be employed by the teachers in our local schools in computing the fuel rationing when the registering of consumers takes place. When it is known how little the public knows about the gasoline rationing and how many of our intelligent citizens made mistakes in filling out the questionnaire recently sent out, it does not require much imagination to conclude that this system of fuel rationing is one that will lead to confusion and misunderstanding.

"When a system like this is so perplexing that it cannot be understood by the public, it is bound to arouse suspicion and weaken faith in our National Government. Men of experience, wisdom and understanding know that simplicity in dealing with the public begets confidence, loyalty and support. I say we hope that in the extension of the rationing system which is now in progress, that those in authority may realize their mistake and build their future systems upon a plane where the public may read and understand."

Gorgeous Service Flag Is Unfurled at Wood and Lincoln

One of those who have entered service as well as those who are backing them up at home, and scored "those who do not realize we are at war." "Godspeed to our boys, and a happy return!" he concluded.

Greetings were received from Chief of Police Linford J. Jones, who was ill. Bucks County Detective Anthony Russo, who was unable to be present; and a message on behalf of Luigi Galzerano, who is ill, was given by his son, Vincent Galzerano, this being addressed to the assemblage in Italian.

Bristol's chief air raid warden, John Healey, was another speaker of the day. Mr. Healey projected the question as to what each as an individual is doing to help win the war, suggesting for those at home compliance with instructions and co-operation with civilian defense authorities. Among his suggestions for aid to the United States were: 1. Cooperate in rationing, don't be a "chiseler"; 2. Buy war bonds, "every bond you buy brings us that much closer to victory; 3. participate in some way in defense of our country, serve in some capacity—as wardens, emergency police, etc.

The high light of the day was the story of Pearl Harbor brought by Mrs. Hamilton, who is now residing in Philadelphia, and who at the outset expressed the wish that there were no such story as that of Pearl Harbor. "It is a story of lies, of treachery, and of deceit which cost the lives of thousands of our men. Pearl Harbor, translated, means 'Peaceful Haven,' and it was until that day in December which we hope the world will never forget," Mrs. Hamilton then told of how, desiring that she and her daughter might use the family car to go to church later in the morning, she had driven with her husband from their home to the naval base where Chief Petty Officer Hamilton was to go on duty. "We lived in the navy quarters adjoining Pearl Harbor and Hickam Field. We felt secure and we were happy that morning of December 7th. My husband was due to report for duty at eight o'clock. As we drove along I was attracted by strange planes, and asked my husband 'What kind of planes are those?' to which he replied 'They look like dive bombers to me.' I asked if I might stay at the base and watch the practice, my husband replied 'Certainly.'

"But we soon realized they were not friendly planes, for suddenly the whole world seemed to have gone mad. Ships were destroyed before our eyes, men were machine-gunned, vessels burst into flames, and planes began to crash. Suddenly I saw directly overhead a plane that was a mass of flames and I remember praying 'Dear God, let that poor boy bail out in time.' But that pilot did not want to bail out. He proved to be a Japanese pilot, and as his plane flamed he set it down on the roof top of an army home at Hickam Field, intent on doing all the damage he could even at the end."

How the U. S. S. "Oklahoma" was overturned in the harbor, trapping 32 American lads, who were brought through the bottom of the ship when rescue workers cut through two days later was told of. "The most terrific explosions of the day were those about our own U. S. S. 'Arizona' continued Mrs. Hamilton. "The men of that ship had entertained us at our own recreation center so many times, and that center was immediately turned into an emergency hospital to care for those men. The immense weight of the bombs hurled from the air carried many of them through one deck before they exploded. One struck the magazine with a terrific explosion. The sounds were horrible, telling us of the fate of the men of that ship. And of those who escaped with their lives, many of them were burned, or their eye-lashes or hair were gone, and yes, in many cases their eyesight was gone."

Continuing the story of horror which was the more amazing in view of the fact that Japanese envoys were discussing peace in the White House a few hours previous, Mrs. Hamilton told that the first raid lasted about 15 minutes. "And immediately every truck, station wagon, bus, private car for miles around was pressed into service, carrying the wounded and supplies. The task was not half completed when the second and most destructive raid of the day took place. Twenty demolition bombs were dropped in a short space of time, and every building in the area seemed to be lifted from the earth and returned to earth in a million pieces. Many of our men lost legs and arms that morning. Yet the most impressive act of all was the courageous fight the wounded put up. 'Take care of my buddy, Doc. He's hurt more than I am' was heard from countless throats. Every one of those men were heroic. My husband left me to my own resources, as did every husband there who had a duty to perform and a base to report to."

Continuing the speaker told that "There aren't any words that can convey to you the experiences of an air raid. I can still hear ringing in my ears the words of the guard in charge of the naval station gates 'Step on the gas—for God's sake.' We all received instruction by means of the radio from that minute on. We wives tried to remain cool and calm. 'War with Japan'—war with a nation whose envoys only 3½ hours before were trying to talk peace—overhead only a few hundred feet above were their planes wreaking death on us. This happened at Pearl Harbor, and it can happen here and anywhere we give them a chance to do their dirty work. Each and everyone of us have a vitally important job to do."

The woman speaker told of how she and her daughter found residents of the Pacific coast states on the alert, but expressed surprise and disappointment at the "state of lethargy too noticeable in many states, and even in many parts of Pennsylvania. 'War doesn't mean just sugar and gasoline

AMERICA IN 1950

IF THE AXIS WINS . . .

. . . your children will be taken from you soon after their birth. In the Axis countries, children belong to the State, not their parents. They are taught to hate their fathers and mothers.

IF AMERICA WINS . . .

. . . you can live in the knowledge that your children will be brought up under the finest conditions known to man. What kind of a future do you want for your sons and daughters? If it's the American way, only your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps will guarantee it.

"The Highway Department has always been one of the most important subdivisions of the State Government. Today its importance is greater than ever before, because the highways are the arteries through which flows the life blood of our war effort—Pennsylvania's commerce. "In Pennsylvania we contribute nearly one-third of the vital materials of war for all of the United Nations, much of which is transported over our roads. They must be maintained and administered with 100% efficiency. We must also plan in advance—formulate a long-range policy. There will be grave difficulties in the way, but we must overcome them. This objective—the preservation and improvement of our highways—will be one of the first aims of my administration."

rationing. War means the loss of all those rights and privileges we have enjoyed through years of peace. War means separation from and all too frequently the loss of loved ones. It means a great deal more—it means that each and every one of us will have to fight tooth and nail if we are to whip the Japanese. . . . Send your men off cheerfully. And while you wait for their return sit not idly by, but take up civilian defense. There's a job for each of us in civilian defense. We have faith in those boys of ours—many never to come home, but gladly giving all that we may live at peace in our glorious land. If we keep them supplied with guns and ammunition, they will win, and what is more they will come home again. We haven't yet begun to sacrifice on the home front. If we do our part it won't be long before we 'Axe the Axis' and set the 'Rising Sun'."

On behalf of the mothers of the boys represented, little Lorraine Lippincott presented a bouquet of large yellow chrysanthemums to Mrs. Hamilton. The child was attired in a red, white and blue costume.

A selection by the glee club was "America the Beautiful."

Major Andrew G. Soia, a chaplain in the U. S. Army, was also introduced. He brought greetings from the boys and of the Army of the U. S. A. "I bring greetings from the Army that has never known defeat, and by God's grace it shall never know defeat. . . . God bless you mothers and fathers. As I say to the boys in our camp hospitals 'Keep your chin up, but don't stick it out.' Turning thoughts to the boys of America now in the service he said: "I have seen your boys in the swamps of Louisiana, in the mountains of Tennessee, and on the plains of Arkansas, and in the hospitals. I can say that your sons are worthy of you. God bless them. It is our hope and prayer that they will return to us, but if it is God's will that some will not, I pray that their sacrifice will not have been in vain. . . . 'Keep praying, keep smiling, keep trusting in God that He will help us and protect our men in the service.'"

Service pins and white carnations were presented to the parents and wives of the men honored. As Mr. Palladino announced the names, members of the committee in charge made the presentations.

Speaking briefly, Percy G. Ford told of the "tough assignment" given to the service men. "But in their hour of trial they have been strong," he added, "and you have proven you are of the same calibre. Continue it!" He then led the gathering in singing of "God Bless America." The concluding number of the day was the singing of the national anthem by the entire assemblage.
